

Mohammed's Maggots Strike Israel

I recounted in a previous essay the attacks by Mohammed's Maggots on the people of France in Nov 2015 [1]:

"The operational wing of the underside of Islam conducted their well-advertised attack against the residents of Paris on 13 Nov 2015, focusing on the innocent and the unprepared. This attack came only ten months after a similar one against the French satirical publication Charlie Hebdo. It proves that although the Hebdo attack led the French authorities to step up their preparedness against terrorism, something isn't working since this one caught them off-guard again. French President Francois Hollande promptly and accurately characterized it as "an act of war", and promised that France would return the favor. Meanwhile, U. S. President Barack "I lied, period" Obama took a break from a fund-raiser long enough to give the attacks two solid harrumphs at a news conference, issuing the standard drivel in his normal Commander Obvious way: "this was an attack on the civilized world". As usual, he declined to name the enemy."

I concluded that essay with some bad news for France:

"France has two problems. The obvious first one is with the Maggots; the second is with its limp-wristed allies."

The HAMAS branch of Mohammed's Maggots managed to evade detection by Israeli intelligence, and conducted a very large scale attack against Israel 7 Oct 2023. According to reliable sources, they inflicted about 1,400 casualties, many more injured, and about 240 or so hostages taken from Israel to Gaza, among which are about 15 or 20 Americans. Among the casualties and hostages were infants and elderly ladies, some of whom survived the Nazi movement of the 1940's. Israel's military (The Israeli Defense Force, IDF) has since begun operations in Gaza, with the stated goal of "eliminating HAMAS".

As usual, Israel finds itself nearly alone in the world. First, most of its so-called allies have remained silent except for the obligatory but meaningless "we regret the loss of life" and "we sympathize with the families of the victims". Secondly, the success of this attack (in which HAMAS discovered the use of air power) only served to encourage the latent world-wide anti-Semitism, especially in America's mainstream news organizations. Nearly all are sympathetic to the Palestinian return-the-land-and-eliminate-Israel movement or are openly supporting the Maggots themselves. Anti-Semitism has gotten bad enough due to inculcation at U. S. colleges that students and professors are accusing Israel of war crimes simply for responding to an attack on its population. No one would believe it if it weren't on video. Third, the U. S. has promised to aid Israel with military assistance and supplies, while at the same time giving millions for "humanitarian purposes" to the Palestinian in Gaza, which of course goes straight into HAMAS' coffers. That policy shows that the Biden administration is either: a) fundamentally hypocritical, naive, gullible, and incompetent; or b) siding the enemy of our ally, Israel. President Joe "Wimpy" Biden himself has warned Israel to "obey the rules of warfare". From the Israeli standpoint, this overall policy position cannot be too reassuring that the U. S. will follow through on its promises. Fourth, the Jewish people have an internal problem: some Jews favor a "cease-fire" in order to avoid civilian casualties in Gaza; in fact they disrupted an official U. S. Congressional proceeding to make their point of view known (for which they were praised by the press).

But there is another problem just as important as the first four; namely, the Israeli government has once again opened up the dusty old law books, and tried to obey the rules of the civilized Western world, justifying their actions in light of what public opinion regards as acceptable in this situation. It is time for the Israeli government, and the Jewish people in general to accept the facts on the ground:

- a. The only support Jewish people get are from nations who recognize that the promise of Genesis 12:3 is still in effect, whether a nation called Israel exists or not. The number of nations fitting that description is small (the U. S., Great Britain, Australia, sometimes France, and sometimes a few others in Europe). There is no near-term fix.
- b. The people of Gaza do not all support HAMAS, but the fact is that majority of them voted to include HAMAS as part of their government in 2005. HAMAS is an ideological Marxist outfit that claims to be the true interpreter of Islam; once they gained power, there were no more elections. It doesn't matter what fraction of the Gaza residents support HAMAS; they are stuck with them as a government.
- c. Both sides have made impossible demands: Israel demands that HAMAS unconditionally surrender, hand over all the hostages and all their weapons. That is never going to happen. HAMAS has demanded that Israel cease to exist and the Jews either evacuate the Middle East or be killed. That is not going to happen either. So, there is no basis for negotiating on either side; this conflict will be ended militarily, same as it started. The best that Israel can hope for is to reduce the HAMAS Maggot organization/government to small size, but expect it to eventually rise again.
- d. The hostages are valuable to HAMAS for four reasons. The first is to drive a wedge between the U. S. and Israel centering on the debate as to how to get them back. Secondly, placing the hostages in near proximity to HAMAS outposts, headquarters, and the tunnel system will serve to restrain the Israelis from attacking them. Third, if the American hostages can be transferred to Iran, they are worth about $1,000,000,000 each in ransom, as recent events have proven. Fourth, killing them will be useful propaganda material for the Maggots, even if they lose the war. It is highly likely that most of the hostages are going to end up dead, except in cases where releasing them gives HAMAS time to regroup or supplies them with a propaganda victory.
- e. Israel as a nation has already lost the propaganda war. The mainstream news organizations and academia worldwide are siding with the HAMAS Maggots as against Israel. There is no practical counter to this problem, as it took thirty years of propaganda and inculcation to produce it. The Jewish people generally have also lost the propaganda war because the news organizations and academia worldwide support the Palestinian people as against Jewish people. There is no near-term solution for this problem either, for the same reason. The United Nations is a joke; Israel is wasting its time even attending. There is no point in arguing with an assembly of anti-Semitic kleptomaniac dictators and other babbling morons. The application is that Israel as a nation will be accused of anything and everything by the mainstream media, social media, academia, and the United Nations, so long as it makes Israel look like the villain, and Judaism its motivating philosophy. No false allegation will be too much for the mainstream media in the U. S. to foment and repeat.
- f. The "civilized rules of warfare", in which professional military fights professional military, is unique to the Western world (the nations of North and South America, Great Britain, Europe, Israel, Russia, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, and a few others). All the other nations fight the Oriental way: population against population. That would include nearly all the Asian nations; and certainly includes Iran and the various Maggot organizations that it finances (Hezbollah and HAMAS). Unfortunately for Israel, the Biden administration is pro-Iran, meaning it will look the other way as Iran continues to support the Maggots. Here is the thing about the "civilized rules of war": they apply only as long as both sides observe them. When the Germans attacked French and English civilians in World War II, the rules came off: the Allies then could attack German civilians and the civilians of their allies, the Italians and Japanese. The application here is: HAMAS is the official military institution of the Gaza strip; since it has attacked Israeli civilians, Israel should not have too much concern about Palestinian civilians. If the Maggots choose to fight Oriental style, so be it. The result will be a large number of casualties among the Gaza residents, and of course, an infinite amount of whimpering about it.
